Dear Learners,

The birth of a newborn is not merely the welcoming of one new life but it also means giving birth to mother. Every laboring woman bears the most painful journey and brings a new life to this world. Nurse Midwives are the ones who provide the care to these laboring woman. But all are not lucky enough to receive dignified care. There are many who are subjected to abuse, ill treatment or just uncared for. We need to learn the right, legal and ethical way in which care should be provided to these women who are at most crucial junction of their lives. Midwives need to come together to network, learn and share research, skills and best practices to enhance their knowledge and raise the standard of midwifery care and practice so that they can contribute to the efforts of the government in saving the lives of mothers and their babies. The purpose of this course to enhance knowledge and skill in providing "respectful maternity care" to serve as a prototype of standard care module that can be used by the nursing and midwifery students in training institutions to serve as a place where skill-training procedures, models and processes can be tried out.
